“Big Love is a song I felt I had to write and record. It’s my anthem and I trust it. It represents my heart and my soul, and defines this moment in time. Hopeful. Strong. Healing.

Our world is experiencing a profound change, and as we look around, reflect, speak out and continue to impact our country and our global society we endeavor to take care of all of us. It’s not a new perspective....you just have to look and listen to find it.

I have written about the potential in all of us. We are a diverse group, the composition of which represents all that we have in common. We differ by gender, sexual orientation, by the color of our skin and by our individual ideology, ethnicity and spiritual guidance.

We are, however, a singular humanity. We truly are: BIG LOVE". Lauren Monroe “ Spending a few hours randomly playing music on Soundcloud on a lazy Sunday, I stumbled upon Lauren Monroe. Wow! This is a spectacular new artist who I’ve never heard about until now. Listening to this sneak preview of her new Ep ‘Big Love’.. slated for release in the summer of 2020, I was entranced, surprised and seduced by the unexpected musical treasures unveiled. “Everybody’s fine living in anger, from sunset to dawn they’re taking it to home” sings Lauren Monroe on “Big Love,” the transcendent opening track on her new album, whose powerful message reverberates, hits hard and stays with us long after the song is over, capturing the current zeitgeist and how we navigate these troubled times in hopes of a an all-encompassing big love to overcome hate and division and be our savior.” Ken Sharpe
